*This poem is sent in by Ann F
She says: "Last month I sent in a poem for all dog lovers so this month in order to redress the balance I have sent one for all the cat people"*

THE CALICO CAT

The calico cat is brown and black
With yellow freckles down her back,
No other cat compares with her -
She is, she knows, superior.

She has an impish, small clown face
And struts as if she owns the place
An ugly little scrap of fur
With wicked eyes, and out-sized purr.

Outrageously self satisfied,
Her wishes will not be denied;
She calmly commanders a lap
When she decides to take a nap,
Or else my bed or favourite chair;
Where she should not be, she is there!

She wears her calico, we think,
As proudly as if it were a mink;
And condescends - we're sure of that
To live with us and be our cat.

A little feline round up.....
